

IDAHO'S GOVERNOR IN A RAGE OVER THE PARDON OF ROBBETT

Scores Department of Justice for Its Aligned Influencing of Taft.

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 15.—All Idaho is stirred up today over the action of Gov. James H. Hawley, in issuing a public statement unparaphrasing the action of the Department of Justice in influencing President Taft to pardon Clarence W. Robbett, former clerk in the Lewiston Idaho National Bank, convicted of embezzling the bank's funds, and sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. He has not served a day of his term. He was pardoned, because through his confession, the Government convicted William Keilbacher, former president, and George Kester, former cashier of the bank.

Governor Hawley's statement is in part:

"No act ever done in connection with the courts of Idaho has so brought justice into disrepute and weakened the courts in the estimation of our people."

He charges the Department of Justice has appointed Special Attorneys General to prosecute every recent Idaho case.

He calls Robbett a "contemptible creature," whose evidence was used to convict men only technically guilty. His statement charges the department with "deliberately purchasing the testimony of self-confessed thieves and bank wreckers on promises of immunity, and with the full expectation of repelling the force of sentence in a court of justice and getting an immediate pardon for the President."

Magnetic Island Affects Ships' Needles

One of the most peculiar formations in the way of magnetic earth and rock in the world is Bornholm, an island in the Baltic sea, about 100 miles east from Sweden.

The island is very rocky, and the greater part of the formation is so magnetic that the needle of a vessel sailing near it is diverted to such an extent that steering with absolute certainty is impossible, and extraordinary objects have to be used as guides.

A short distance from the main island the vessels can pass directly over a rock which is so strongly magnetized that a needle will be drawn straight downward.

Scientists are of the opinion that certain powers might be utilized to furnish energy with which certain kinds of machinery might be run. This magnetic energy is not placed for nothing, and doubtless its use, when discovered, will be a wonderful one.

All Anxious to See, But Not to Assist

An ambulance stood at the apartment house entrance. The usual crowd gathered around, waiting for the appearance of the stricken. Presently the surgeon came to the door and spoke to a man standing near. The man spoke his head bowed and the crowd of the crowd.

The surgeon addressed the man with the same result. Three other men having been appealed to, likewise beat a retreat. The ambulance driver, who happened to come along was pressed into service and helped carry the patient down stairs.

"This is a curious feature of the morbid crowds that gather around an ambulance," said the surgeon. "Everybody is anxious to see what is going on, but nobody wants to get mixed up in the case to the extent of even stepping inside the house. Maybe they are afraid of disease, maybe they are afraid of complications in case of accident or assault, but whatever their reason for shying off it is almost impossible to secure assistance in moving an extraordinarily heavy load."—New York Times.

Explanation of the Art of Self-Defense

Algernon appeared on his elevator the other morning with one of his fingers elaborately bound up in yards and yards of white bandaging.

"What's happened to your finger, Algernon?" the Top Floor asked.

"It's hurt pretty bad, sah, 't'ank you, sah. 'Yo see, it was dis way: 'Las' night when I luf dis place, I wen' down town for a p'm'due an' 'lso walkin' 'lso as peaceable as I is dis minute down on Green Witch street, when I runs into a fight an' befo' I could get out ob de way, I four 'myse' lvin' on de pavement wif a colud german standin' wif his heel on dis yeah finger. De's boy it happen, sah, sho. Taint 'f'en I gits into a preparapment lik dat. Is v-e-r-y careful to veld at fight when I see 'em in time. One ob de's my 'f'ader alw'ays say wif 'live peaceable an' 'yo won't have no fightin'. Dat w'y he learned me de fust principle ob de defense, w'en I was v-e-r-y small; so now I kin 'em always 'vold even de sove kin ob fightin'. How does ob de? Well, w'en I sees dat a fight is undesirable, I jes runs away. My fader said dat am de v-e-r-y fust principle ob de defense. 'Wot an' de's, I coll'lated dat de fust principle ob de defense is 'dat I clean f'ogot to run dis time. Fut de p-e-a-c-e-ful 'lso 'member'!"—New York Times.
